INTRODUCTION

The Balance of Payments (BOP) is a statistical statement that summarizes transactions between residents and nonresidents during a period. This publication provides estimates of Pakistan's Balance of Payments for the financial year July 2013-June 2014 prepared in accordance with the IMF's Manual on Balance of Payments and International Investment Position 6th edition (BPM6).

2. The main components of BOP are (a) Current Account (CA) (b) Capital Account (c) Financial Account and Error and Omissions. Current account comprises of balance of trade in goods & services, primary income and secondary income. Capital account relates to acquisition / disposal of non-produced non-financial assets and capital transfers. Financial account records transactions that involve financial assets and liabilities taking place between residents and nonresidents. Financial transactions are classified into direct investment, portfolio investment, financial derivatives and employees stock options, other investments and reserve assets. Further, other investment comprises of other equity, currency & deposits, loans, insurance, pension, and standardized guarantee schemes, trade credits & advances and other accounts receivable/ payable. Monetary gold, special drawing rights (SDRs) and foreign exchange available with the State Bank of Pakistan are the part of the reserve assets. The financial account shows the net acquisition of financial assets and net incurrence of liabilities during the specified period.

3. Balance of Payments transactions are recorded on double-entry book keeping where each credit-entry is exactly balanced by an offsetting debit-entry and vice versa. A credit-entry records the provision of real resources such as exports of goods and services, a decrease in holding of foreign financial assets or an increase in foreign financial liabilities. Conversely, a debit-entry records imports of goods and services, an increase in holding of foreign financial assets or a decrease in foreign financial liabilities. When commodities are received or given away rather than for value or exchange, the recording is one sided. The offsetting entry is referred to as transfers classified under secondary income. The net positions of accounts in BOP statement are arrived at by deducting debits from credits.

4. Conceptually, the sum of all credit entries is equal to sum of all debit entries. As the data for compilation of BOP estimates are taken independently from various sources, the process generates net credit or net debit and recognized in the balance of payments statement as "errors and omissions". The statistical discrepancies may arise due to time lag, valuation and recording of individual items. In BOP statement, it would appear as a separate entry of equal amount with opposite sign.

5. The balance of payments statement is based on data collected from various sources. Major portion of data is collected and compiled through international transactions reporting system (ITRS) from State Bank of Pakistan and authorized dealers of banks dealing in foreign exchange. The ITRS is supplemented by the annual survey of foreign investment in Pakistan and abroad and status report on disbursements of foreign economic assistance, authorization advices for repayment of foreign loans and credits, receipts & payments of foreign exchange transactions by Exchange Companies. The coverage also includes data relating to Pakistani air and shipping companies, foreign air and shipping companies, Pakistan diplomatic missions abroad, resident enterprises having accounts abroad, dry ports, duty free shops, land borne trade adjustment with Afghanistan, EPZs etc.

6. The merchandise transactions reported by banks are on a mixed fob and cif basis. For exports, the freight collected by foreign and Pakistani shipping and air companies is subtracted from the export proceeds reported by banking channel to bring it on fob basis. Data on outstanding export bills, land borne trade with Afghanistan, Pakistani enterprises transactions from the accounts abroad and exports of samples etc are also included to arrive at total exports.

8. The figures of merchandise trade used for compilation of BOP are based on exchange records which may differ from those compiled using customs records. The reasons of differences are the valuation, timing and coverage of transactions. Customs record trade figures generally on cif basis for imports and fob basis for exports while balance of payments data are adjusted on fob basis. The 'timing' of transactions is of considerable importance. Customs record trade at ports at the time of exit or entry of goods. Exchange records recognize trade on actual realization of proceeds and also include advance payments, payments through bills of exchange of varying maturity, payments by open book accounts or settlements of deferred payments basis. These leads and lags cause difference between the two sets of figures through adjusted to some extent. The gift parcels and passengers' dutiable goods are included, as a rule, by customs but not by exchange record. Data on these items is collected from other relevant sources and included in BOP trade. On the contrary, customs figures are exclusive of defense stores but exchange records include them. Similarly, following transactions are not covered in customs records but included in exchange records of banking channel:

- i) Fish caught in high seas, sold in the sea to non-residents and foreign exchange brought through the banks
- ii) Purchases made by diplomatic missions abroad for their own use
